

Barbs Fly During Dole-Mondale Clash

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Vice presidential rivals Walter Mondale and Robert Dole clashed on government spending, Eastern Europe and restoration of public faith in a debate that brought their campaign, one-liners and all, into the nation's living rooms Friday night.

Mondale accused President Ford of "one of the most outrageous statements ever made by a President in recent history" when Ford said in the last presidential debate that Poland was free of Soviet domination.

Dole repeatedly said he didn't know what Jimmy Carter stood for, claiming "Carter has three positions on everything; that's why they're having three debates."

Though their delivery was quiet, almost informal, one-line barbs flew back and forth throughout the 75-minute, nationally broadcast event. For example:

Dole: "I couldn't understand why Gov. Carter was in Playboy magazine. But he was. We'll give him the bunny vote."

Mondale: "I think Sen. Dole has richly earned his reputation as a hatchet man tonight by saying World War II and the Korean War were Democratic wars."

Dole: "I just wish Gov. Carter had a foreign policy. He doesn't have any."

Mondale: "Sen. Dole has probably the worst record on supporting tax loopholes" in the Senate.

Their closing statements in many respects summed up what each had said throughout. Dole declared that the Democrats "don't care about inflation," and Mondale claimed that "what really counts is whether this country can begin to solve those problems that are overwhelming Americans."

The Democratic nominee said: "We believe we need a government that works efficiently but also a government that cares."

The Republican nominee closed by extolling

Ford as a "man of unparalleled decency and honesty."

Dole defended the policies of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, saying "no one's being drafted; no one's going off to war; no one's being shot at; no one's being buried; not a single shot is being fired in anger."

Asked how Democratic foreign policy would differ from the Republicans' in Eastern Europe, Mondale said it would not deal with that region as a bloc, but with each country individually.

In low-key exchanges punctuated occasionally by Republican Dole's sardonic one-liners, Mondale accused the administration of responsibility for economic woes, and Dole branded Mondale as the Senate's most liberal member who votes "for every piece of spending legislation that comes down the pike."

Democrat Mondale said Jimmy Carter and he can restore the faith of the public "by telling the truth, obeying the law, seeing things as they really are."

But Dole said faith in the nation's political system would be better restored if politicians don't "promise what we can't deliver."

In a reference to Carter, the Kansas senator said "some of those who lust for power are not really concerned about the people." His Minnesota senate colleague countered that Carter shows he "really has faith in the people" by campaigning more than Ford and by disclosing his income tax returns.

Again and again in the domestic-issues segment of the first nationally broadcast debate between vice presidential candidates, Dole and Mondale returned to the basic economic theme of social needs versus budget trimming. Mondale said that under the Ford administration the country had moved to the verge of "raging inflation."

Mondale said the principal need from the next administration is "for an economy that works."

Huskers Expect Defensive Clash

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

Nebraska's football team remembers how tough Kansas State's defensive team played a year ago in Manhattan when the Cornhuskers struggled to put 12 points on the scoreboard.

The same type of effort is expected Saturday when the Wildcats visit NU's Memorial Stadium for their annual Big Eight Conference clash with the Huskers.

Kickoff will be at 1:30 p.m. It could be even tougher for the Huskers this time because of an improved K-State offense led by freshman quarterback Duane Howard and three other speedy freshmen ball carriers.

Defense, however, still is the strength of Coach Ellis Rainsberger's second K-State team, led by a pair of experienced linebackers, Gary Spani and Carl Pennington.

Spani was one of the keys in holding Nebraska's victory margin to 12 last season. He had 19 total tackles, including seven unassisted, and dropped Huskers three times behind the line for a loss of 15 yards. He had much the same kind of game last week in K-State's 28-21 loss to Missouri.

"Against Missouri, Spani, (nose guard Theopolis) Bryant and (free safety Dennis) Frazee

Coaches' Capsules

Nebraska's Tom Osborne: "Kansas State has a much better offensive line this year. They're blocking better and their people at the skill positions can move. Their defense will keep them in most of the games they play until the fourth quarter."

Kansas State's Ellis Rainsberger: "Duane Howard has really given us a boost at quarterback. He showed he could do a lot of things; run over people, throw the football with authority, and lead a football team. Duane certainly has given our football team some life."

were super," Rainsberger said. "Spani made big-league plays all day."

Bryant's play brought praise from Missouri center Larry McDewitt. "Most nose guards are either strong — or quick — but Bryant's both," McDewitt said. "I'd put him right up there with anyone I've faced. He split our double-teams a couple of times and that shouldn't happen. I'd block him a yard or two, but he'd dig in and get off the block so that I could never drive him very well."

Nebraska came on strong in the second half at Colorado offensively despite injuries that sidelined

I-back Monte Anthony and fullback Dodie Donnell and the performance was encouraging for the future.

The Huskers, who had 372 yards in total offense but only 12 points against KSU last season, are averaging just slightly more than that this season (381).

NU coach Tom Osborne said the Huskers are as beaten up physically as they've been in three or four years, but noted that they played a good second half last week in much the same condition they'll be in for K-State.

It is unlikely Anthony will play much against the Wildcats. His replacement, Richard Berns, showed he can scott when he rained 127 yards in 22 carries against Colorado. Backup I-backs probably will be Dave Gillespie and Byron Stewart.

Osborne said he considers Missouri as strong a team as there is in the Big Eight this year and added, "Any team that comes close to beating Missouri is a very good team and Kansas State came real close."

The Husker coach is hoping his squad arrives at its potential soon. "We're going to have to put it together and do it quick," Osborne said. "We have to get a few little things ironed out so we can go from a good team to a great team in a hurry."

Report Motive Blasted At Senator's Hearing

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The chairman of the Legislature's Conflicts of Interest Committee Friday blasted what he described as politically damaging motives behind protected disclosure that a Lincoln state senator used publicly funded resources for personal campaign invitations.

"Unless someone comes forward" with a formal complaint coinciding with Lincoln Star news reports, Omaha Sen. William Skarda said, "We have absolutely no (legal) jurisdiction at all" over Sen. Harold Simpson's admitted conduct in the incident.

In the hearing, open at his request, Simpson said, "I did not act improperly." But to remove "the slightest hint of impropriety" from his 10-year public service record, Simpson paid the state $14.67 — the sum he estimated it cost for secretarial time, stationery, duplicating, envelopes and postage.

Simpson showed the committee the legislative letterhead invitation to a fund-raising reception he sent in connection with his election bid for a Public Service Commission seat.

"I make no excuses for sending the letters," Simpson said. "I feel it was within my prerogative" to communicate with fellow senators who had asked to be invited to his campaign activities.

"They were not there in any way to participate financially" but "as my guests," Simpson said, adding he was "sure" legislators "will agree that my courtesy invitation was not, and did not appear to be, a solicitation for contributions..." He said his campaign committee handled "all other correspondence regarding the reception" by using his campaign letterhead.

Simpson acknowledged the invitations at issue "were typed and Xeroxed by my office secretary" and "most (26) were mailed at state expense." That was his first certain reference to the postage question.

"I'm not sure yet today and my secretary's not sure whether she worked on state time to type this," because she does "legislative work and personal work for me on her own time."

Skarda said the most the panel could have done Friday was issue an advisory opinion. The law provides no initiative authority, only post-complaint investigatory duties.

The way allegations about Simpson were disclosed "is probably one of the worst rip-offs I've ever seen a senator get," Skarda said. In an earlier interview, he personally opposed the conduct Simpson admitted to, but Friday called him "one of the most honorable men" he's worked with.

Simpson said, "I believe that I acted well within state law and the ethics of the Legislature."

"Six senators used state stationery to reply to my invitation" including five written by their secretaries, he said. "If they will determine their costs, I will also reimburse the Legislature for this expense."

But Simpson too called the leak to the newspaper a "vicious attack" by one of his colleagues or their staff members, who tried to "make something out of what I feel is nothing."

If he had received such an invitation and felt it improper, Simpson said, "I would've first of all contacted the senator" and then internal legislative governing authorities.

Skarda said he only called the committee members together because he received three phone calls from a Star reporter. Skarda claimed he "got a dozen" calls about Simpson's PSC opponent, Joyce Durand, and the propriety of her candidacy while a commission employee. She said the Hatch Act would prevent her eligibility only if the PSC administered federal funds.

Saying he's "glad to get out" of the Legislature after 18 years, the retiring Skarda generally castigated current campaign tactics and added, "I think the press has been a little out of line" too.

Ford Promises Farmers No Government Meddling

Ames, Iowa (UPI) — President Ford, trying to nail down the Midwestern heartland for the GOP, Friday promised farmers to keep "government's meddling hand" out of their affairs and said Jimmy Carter wants to return to "old discredited" farm policies.

Ford campaigned at Iowa State University where he spoke to several thousand students and townspeople in an open courtyard, in sunny, brisk weather.

The President left the campus to visit a working farm owned by Marshall King near Boone, Iowa, and had lunch with the family after watching a demonstration of mechanical corn picking and shelling. He chatted with King about farm prices and export sales.

He also visited an Iowa farm before crossing over into Illinois for an overnight stop and a Saturday whistle-stop speaking tour.

Ford went to the Iowa State veterinary school to sign a bill extending the Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974, saying he considered it "critically important that we continue to provide relief to the livestock industry while it is experiencing current economic adversity."

Ford said the bill would provide "stability in the market place and help to assure an adequate supply of meat to the American consumer at reasonable prices." The two-year legislation authorizes $1.5 billion for loans to farmers for use while their livestock is being fed and prepared for market.

The speech at Ames was almost entirely a paean to the achievements of the American farmer and a series of pledges of government aid without interference.

Ford was critical of Carter and said the Democrat "has a strange way of changing his accent as he moves around this country." He said Carter tried to sound like farm labor leader Cesar Chavez in California, Mayor Richard Daley in Chicago, Ralph Nader in New York and AFL-CIO President George Meany in Washington. "Then he comes to the Farm Belt and he becomes a little old peanut farmer," Ford said.

Ford Goofs

Ames, Iowa (AP) — President Ford had an early fumble in Iowa.

"It's great to be in Ohio," the President said opening a speech at Iowa State University. After laughter subsided, Ford recovered.

"We Michiganders have Ohio State on our mind," he said, referring to the heated Big Ten Conference football rivalry between the two states. Michigan plays Ohio State Nov. 20.

Northeast Decries Lack Of Physicians

Nielsen Homes Well-Guarded Secret

By HARRY JACKSON
Star Staff Writer

Is the nation's most closely guarded secret in the Pentagon? Is it in the White House? No.

It's the identity and location of 1,300 sample households used by the A.C. Nielsen Co. for making up television ratings.

"I don't know where they are," said Arthur Nielsen Jr., head of the multimillion-dollar marketing research corporation which has a branch in Lincoln.

Nielsen visited Lincoln Friday to speak for the Nebraska Association of Commerce and Industry holding its annual conference here this week.

During an interview in Nielsen's 11th and P St. Lincoln branch, Nielsen said the "Nielsen Ratings," which make or break the nation's network television shows, are an outgrowth of the company's early marketing research efforts.

"My father began with how to measure radio back in 1938," Nielsen said about Nielsen Sr. who founded the corporation in early days of the Great Depression.

"We got into the business because we were trying to help our customers measure the size of markets and why some manufacturers' brands are popular and some aren't," he said.

"We had to know about advertising and radio was getting to be a bigger thing," he said.

Nielsen said when the radio polls began, no one knew what people listened to, or how much or when. The Nielsen company experimented with the program for many years, then shortly after World War II began rating air wave programs as a new service.

To run the service, Nielsen said, there must be two factors: a cross section of households representing the television audience; and persons who will cooperate.

Cooperation involves getting the residents consent to having a miniature patented computer called an audimeter installed on the television.

The machine takes a minute-to-minute reading of what channel is being viewed.

The information is stored in the audimeter and once a day sent automatically by telephone to a big brother somewhere in Florida.

Although there are no audimeters in Lincoln, an alternative method of keeping a diary is being used in about 200 homes.

Participants are paid for their help, Nielsen said, and half of any television repair bills covered.

He said the televisions used are on a permanent basis or at least until the family is no longer a member of mainstream America. The study group changes about every five years, Nielsen estimated.

Nielsen said his ratings are accurate for "the service they provide."

"A typical night time program has a rating of about 20%," Nielsen said. "The method we used gives figures accurate within 1.3% either way."

He said although ratings are important for the survival of a program, several factors affect the final decision.

In one case, the "time slot" — when a program is on — determines its worth. A program in an unpopular time slot such as early morning, wouldn't need a rating as high as one on at 8 p.m.

The cost is what kills many popular shows, though, Nielsen said.

"One of the most important figures we provide is the cost per 1,000 ratio," Nielsen said. "How much does a program cost to reach 1,000 viewers?"

He gave an example: "Let's say a program costs $2.50 for every 1,000 viewers it reaches. That's pretty good. But if that rises to $5 the program could be cancelled."

TV RATER... A. Nielsen.

High-priced programs are difficult to sell to advertisers, he said.

On another topic, he said the first presidential debate got about 90 million viewers, but the second "got less."

Kremlin Takes Carter, Ford To Task For Their Hard Lines

The New York Times
Moscow — The Kremlin has voiced its sharpest objection yet to the tough line on the Soviet Union being taken in the American presidential election campaign by President Ford and Jimmy Carter.

A toughly worded statement in the official newspaper Pravda warned Friday in its headline: "Mister Candidates, Don't Overstep the Line of the Permissible." The article went on to rebuke both men publicly for having exceeded what Moscow felt was the bounds of propriety in their remarks to American voters.

"Even allowing for the methods used in bourgeois countries by candidates chasing votes, such acts are quite inadmissible and have understandably outraged the Soviet people," Pravda said. The Kremlin organ, in particular, criticized Ford for having invited what it called "emigre riff-raff" into the White House earlier this week to explain his position on Soviet domination of Eastern Europe.

The reprimand was unsigned and strategically placed opposite Pravda's international affairs page, suggesting that it carried official weight. It marked the first time that the Kremlin injected its opinions directly into the current American election campaign.

Western diplomats here felt the sharp Soviet reaction was triggered by the televised debate last week between the candidates on foreign policy. "It was rather unpleasant for them, and they couldn't leave it unmentioned," one diplomat observed.

Ruff Won't Investigate Ford's Watergate Role

WASHINGTON (AP) — Special Watergate Prosecutor Charles Ruff said Friday he has decided against a full scale investigation into allegations that President Ford and officials of the Nixon White House discussed blocking the first Watergate investigations.

Ruff, however, left open the possibility that an investigation into Ford's role might be handled by the Justice Department.

In a letter to Democratic Reps. Elizabeth Holtzman of New York and John Conyers of Michigan, Ruff said neither "previously available information" nor recent statements by former White House Counsel John W. Dean III are enough to justify a new investigation.

At issue is whether Ford, when he was House minority leader, acted at the request of former President Richard M. Nixon, and led efforts to cut short an early Watergate investigation by the late Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee.

Opposed by the Republicans on the committee and a few Democrats, the proposed investigation was disapproved and it was not until other congressional investigations that the Watergate scandals were exposed.

Ford testified during his vice presidential confirmation hearings that although he urged the Patman committee not to investigate Watergate in September and October 1972, he did so independently with no discussions on the issue with White House officials.

Fire, Dust Plaguing Midwest

By United Press International
Wind-fanned fires broke out like chicken pox Friday across the Upper Midwest. Dust swept up by gusty winds mixed with the smoke rising from flames searing drought-dry grass and forest lands.

Fires erupted in four states — Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan and Iowa. Minnesota, parched by a summer-long drought, got the worst of the flames. Forty-two new fires broke out in the state, bringing to more than 200 the number burning there.

One fire death was reported. Authorities said Carl Hokanson, 72, of Dodge Center, Minn., died of apparent asphyxiation Thursday while fighting a fire which destroyed about 75 acres of corn land.

The dust and the drought evoked memories of the Dust Bowl era of the 1930s on the Great Plains.

In South Dakota, the National Weather Service at Sioux Falls said the 1976 drought is possibly the worst of the century. It reported that rainfall for the growing season averaged only a little over six inches — less than the precipitation in either 1934 or 1936, the worst Dust Bowl years.

Wind gusts up to 60 miles an hour whipped up dust on the prairies of South Dakota, North Dakota and northwestern Minnesota, cutting visibility sharply in some areas. The winds raced on into the Upper Great Lakes region but subsided on the plains.

A resident of Audubon, Minn., said he found his new red car covered with dust when he awoke Friday. He said a neighbor was forced to postpone plans to put up a modular home because of the high winds.

Col. Ralph Wood, head of the North Dakota Highway Patrol, said however that the dust storm was "nothing like the dust storms of the 1930s."

FDA Plans To Phase Out Fluorocarbons In Sprays

Flu Vaccine 'Not Killer'

Atlanta (AP) — The more than 30 persons who died after getting swine flu shots were not killed by the vaccine, the U.S. Center for Disease Control said Friday.

"It is clear to us that there is no basis to conclude that there is any increased mortality because of the flu shot program," said Dr. J. Donald Miller of the CDC's vaccination program.

VW '77 Prices Rise

Warren, Vt. (AP) — Prices of 1977 Volkswagen models will be increased an average of $112.

A National Academy of Sciences panel reported last month that fluorocarbons from aerosol sprays are damaging the ozone shield, which protects against harmful ultraviolet radiation, and will have to be selectively regulated or banned.

FBI Head's Term Limited

Washington (UPI) — President Ford Friday signed into law a bill limiting the term of office for the FBI director to 10 years. The limitation was included in the Law Enforcement Assistance Act which extends the LEAA program for three years with funding of $880 million in 1977 and $800 annually the next two years. It also makes clear that LEAA is subject to the direction of the attorney general.

Criticism Pays Off

Fault is often found with the fact that so many things contained in the daily press relate to criticism of one thing or another. Partly, this is due to the feeling that we ought to spend more time hearing about the things that are right with our society.

Without getting into the "things that are right" area, a recent case has demonstrated the value of criticism. Due to discussion in the media of the Nebraska State Patrol's drug law enforcement program, the program is being substantially changed by the department.

Were the shortcomings that existed in the program not brought to light publicly, strengthening of the enforcement effort now taking place might well have never happened. The plain fact is that nothing produces change like a little rocking of the boat.

Complacency is a malady that afflicts all of us. It is far less tiring and less challenging to sit back and let matters proceed as they have in the past. The further fact is that this is seldom a good policy to follow.

Complacency did not build our nation and satisfaction with the status quo is not what has given the American people one of the highest standards of living in the world. This country's greatness has been built by people who were never satisfied with things the way they were.

Just this past week, Nobel Peace prizes were awarded in a number of fields. Winners included three Americans in the fields of medicine and economics.

The winners are men who did not sit back and contemplate how fine things were as they stood. Rather, they pioneered in their fields in an effort to improve upon the theories and practices currently in vogue in our society.

That is very much a part of the way of life in this country and most countries of the world. Much of it is not an indictment of what has gone on in the past or is currently being done, but simply a recognition of the truth that there is little that cannot be improved upon.

The State Patrol had a relatively new challenge in the enforcement of drug laws. It made what it considered a good effort to meet that challenge and it was often successful.

But a better, more effective organizational structure was shown to be needed and is now being put into practice. Patrol Col. C. P. Kartbauer is to be commended for his willingness to examine new approaches. The criticism of the past has provided new promise for the future.

Down To The Wire

The newspaper poll published last weekend showing Omaha Mayor Ed Zorinsky running ten percentage points ahead of John Y. McCollister in the race for Roman Hruska's U.S. Senate seat shocked not only the McCollister camp (and possibly the Zorinsky camp) but out-of-state observers as well.

The national media and political observers the country over are plainly interested in what has become Nebraska's premier political event.

The McCollister forces have re-evaluated the Omaha congressman's campaign effort to date and this week decided to redirect some funds into what they feel will be more effective campaigning, and they also admitted that it will take more money than planned to head off the Zorinsky challenge in a Senate contest that had been figured as safe for McCollister.

There are some estimates that McCollister may end up spending close to $200,000 more than Zorinsky before it is all over.

"We realize we've got a real fight on our hands," McCollister campaign Chairman Paul Amen of Lincoln told The Star.

A "real fight," a close-to-even match, is probably closer to describing the state of voter sentiment than the ten-point bulge. Zorinsky is said to enjoy. That is not to fault or second-guess any pollster. But a ten-point margin over the veteran, competent Omaha congressman — even by Zorinsky, a highly popular Omaha mayor — seems hard to believe. Many savvy political observers in the state — of both parties — think at this point the Senate contest is about even. The damage has not yet been done. It is still to be done.

But even forcing a close race is to the credit of Zorinsky, who, despite his high regard in Omaha, was not widely known outside, and was a recent convert to the Democratic Party to boot.

The contest illustrates that little can be regarded "safe" in politics in Nebraska anymore — which is a good thing.

It also reflects a steady erosion in support for the kind of Senate representation Nebraska has been getting for the past few decades. Those signals began in 1970, the last time Hruska ran for re-election.

One contributing factor to the closeness of this race may be resentment to Hruska trying to handpick a successor.

CHARLES B. SEIB

Caution Is The Watchword

WASHINGTON — Daniel Schorr has gone off to the earthly heaven of the modern martyr: lush lecture fees, a book contract and adoring academia. But before his encounter with the forces of repression is filed away, note should be taken of some parting words from the loser — the House ethics committee.

In its final report on the Schorr case, the committee undertook to offer some advice to the press. What it had to say got sketchy coverage (such temerity on the part of mere congressmen should not be encouraged), so let me lay it out here.

The committee suggested that media self-policing would reduce the chance of a constitutional confrontation on the First Amendment, and, with the hint of a smirk, it said that "wider adherence by journalists to their canons and ethics also would help." That came right after it noted that Schorr had lied at first about whether he had given the Village Voice a House report on the CIA.

Then the committee said: "This committee recognizes the free press — as is its right — often disagrees with the government over the control of information. It is not axiomatic, however, that the news media is always right and the government is always wrong. We suggest that those who embrace this concept re-evaluate their position and adopt a more objective outlook.

"No doubt a newsman can find someone who will print information without regard to potential danger to our national welfare. Newsmen just like anyone else, are not infallible in their judgment of what is right or wrong, good or bad, for our nation.

"The mere assertion by a newsman that he revealed some government secret 'for the good of the country' does not insure the country actually will benefit. Nor is the assertion that the government overclassifies or improperly classifies much information a guarantee that the revealed secret will not do great harm.

"The fact is, the news media frequently do not possess sufficient information on which to make a prudent decision on whether the revelation of a secret will help or harm. We suggest caution and discretion should be the watchwords."

Fairly mild words those, considering that the committee came out of its encounter with Schorr looking both inept and ineffectual. But one could sense a bristling reaction from the press even in the news stories on the report.

The Associated Press said the committee made "a broad attack on the news media." It reported that the report "said the media should re-evaluate its belief that it has the right to publish classified documents." (Compare that to what the committee really said should be re-evaluated. The committee's actual words were quoted later in the AP story, but so low that they were likely to be lost before seeing print.)

United Press International said that the report "castigated" the news media as well as Schorr. The committee "lectured media reporters on their First Amendment responsibilities," said UPI.

The New York Times story first mentioned the advice to the media when it reported that Rep. Thomas S. Foley (D-Wash.) found it "unnecessary and gratuitous." Then it offered three sentences of quotations from that section of the report.

The Washington Post passed. It made no mention whatsoever of what the committee had to say about the news media.

As one who has often called for eternal vigilance in the defense of the First Amendment, I can understand press indignation at the nerve of those Hill types in telling us how to run our business. But it seems to me that the coverage I've cited (including, perhaps, the Post's non-coverage) was overly defensive.

More important, I have reason to believe that many of the customers of the news business — probably a majority — would wholeheartedly go along with the committee's advice.

There is a widespread and growing public reluctance to accept the hard-line First Amendment argument that we of the press, and we alone, should determine whether whatever falls into our hands, secret or not, is to see the light of print.

While I generally defend that position, I do so with the full knowledge that it is a far from popular one. Readers of this column and of the Washington Post, where I serve as ombudsman, keep me always aware of that.

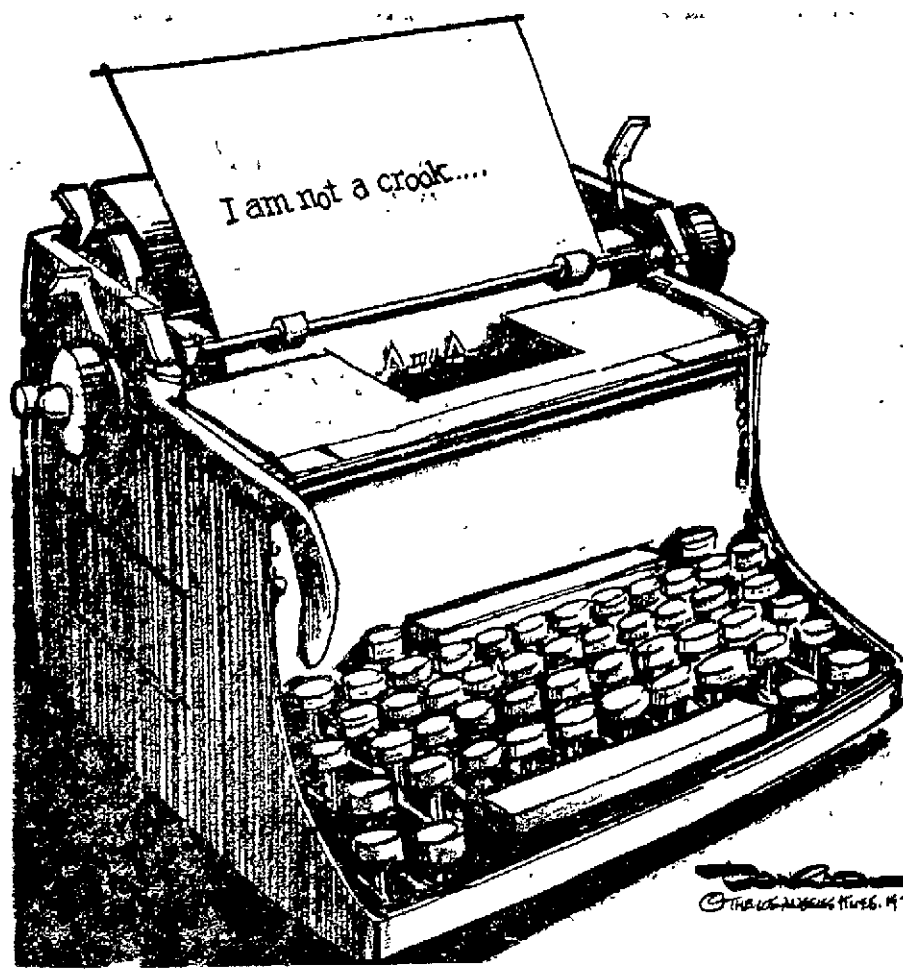

By chance, while I was writing this, a letter arrived from a reader in Minneapolis who thinks the press is getting too big for its britches.

"As a private citizen," he wrote, "I am deeply concerned that news media reporters and editors might press eventually for the creation for themselves of a special class having very special rights and privileges no one else in this country has."

Messages like that are by no means unusual. As the public's awareness of the power of the media increases, so does its concern.

Caution and discretion should indeed be the watchwords, as the ethics committee urged. I see neither less majesty nor a threat to the free press in the suggestion.

The Character Campaign

BOSTON — They're going to call this the Character Campaign. They're going to call the reporters covering it the Motivational Media. And the whole election is going to go down in the textbooks under the heading, Psychepolitics.

The candidates of 1976 have taken the old Barry Goldwater slogan — "In Your Heart, You Know He's Right" — and turned it around. Now it reads, "In Your Heart, You Know He's Trustworthy." Carter and Ford are running on a Character Platform. And the Boys on the Bus are investigating their souls with more gusto than they used to research their campaign funds.

In the course of eight years, the public has become psychologically sophisticated and politically disillusioned. Put these facts together and they spell the most carefully analytical personality campaign we've ever seen. The "right to know" is now the duty to know about the behavior and motivational patterns of the candidates seeking power.

We are looking for the Nixon factor. If generals are always fighting the last war, the public is warding off the last Watergate, and the press is reacting to their last trip on the campaign trail.

The 1972 Nixon campaign was based on the anesthetic slogan, "Four More Years." Many of the reporters who covered that campaign have a legacy of guilt. Some are guilty that they were fooled. Others have a sense that they did know the manner of the man but couldn't convey it within the confines of traditional "yes" the facts ma'am" reporting. Now, they feel a lingering obligation to uncover the psychological history of the man, to go beyond the details of ketchup and cottage cheese lunch menus.

This is a difficult task, perhaps even impossible. The writers who rushed South in order to find out what motivates "a rural Southern Baptist" are often as frustrated (or as shallow) as those who try to discover the characters of Ted Kennedy and Tip O'Neill by interviewing Boston Irish Catholics.

Those who try to determine what Gerald Ford will do by analyzing his past can be no more certain than those who had Reagan "down cold" before he picked Schweiker. Motivations are always easiest to unravel in retrospect.

The assumption behind the Character Campaign is that people are totally consistent and therefore predictable. We all want to be protected against unpleasant surprises — a benign way to characterize Watergate. We assume that one way to know the future is to "know the man."

So, consistency this year isn't a question of policy, but of personality. It isn't a question of Ford's policy toward Eastern Europe — he isn't going to "liberate" Poland — but of his grasp of policy at all. It isn't a question of Carter's religious policy — he isn't going to institutionalize baptism — but the internalized rigidity of the man.

Of course, the search for psyche can lead us onto shaky ground. It suggests that a man does what he is. But the curious problem about Mr. Ford is that, while we are sure he is a nice guy, we are not sure whether that translates into politics. On the other hand, while we are sure that Mr. Carter has a "strong character," we wonder whether righteousness is politically dangerous.

So we keep looking, reading, writing.

The Nixon factor in this campaign is the loss of the public confidence in our own judgment. We are no longer sure that we are seeing and hearing "the real thing." Above all else, we don't want to be fooled.

There are three public reactions to this lack of confidence. One is to drop out of the interested electorate; the other is to dive in deeply, looking for more information, more analysis. The third is to remain undecided.

In 1972, there was a popular bumper sticker that read, "Don't Blame Me, I'm From Massachusetts." You can still see some of them peeling off of battered Volkswagens.

Now the Character Campaign, the Motivational Media, are encountering another growing sentiment. This one reads, "You Can't Blame Me, I Won't Decide."

TOM WICKER

How To Play Politics

NEW YORK — Jimmy Carter asked for it the other day, and Gerald Ford promptly let him have it. On Tuesday, Carter called for an increase in price-support loans to grain farmers, saying such an increase was long overdue. On Wednesday, Ford directed the Agriculture Department to announce such an increase — 50 per cent for wheat, 20 per cent for corn, and proportional increases for the other principal feed grains.

Never mind that on the same day that Carter, who was seeking the farm vote, demanded price support increases, J. Dawson Abalt, the Agriculture Department's staff economist, said that "at this time we see no economic justification" for raising the support levels. Ford, seeking the farm vote as assiduously as Carter, had plenty of political justification — which is all this President ever needs.

What difference did it make to him that Abalt's statement was based on the fact that the Agriculture Department is estimating the largest American corn crop, the second largest American wheat crop, and one of the best Soviet grain crops in history? All that matters to Gerald Ford is that the Des Moines Register poll shows him in a dead heat with Jimmy Carter in Iowa (before the Earl Butz fiasco), and that David Owen — director of Kansas Sen. Bob Dole's vice presidential campaign — says that of the principal farm states only Kansas is safe for Ford, with Minnesota safe for Carter and all the others extremely close (as reported by Karen Elliott House in the Wall Street Journal).

The fact of the matter is that Gerald Ford, for all his nice-guy mannerisms and his supposed decency, is the most political president since Richard Nixon — far more so than, say, Lyndon B. Johnson.

Johnson, it should be remembered, refused to put up farm prices in the fall of 1968, although he had the same power to do so then that Ford exercised this week. Now you and I may think that Hubert Humphrey lost the election that year because of Vietnam; but Humphrey, for one good witness, believes that he really lost the election — one of the closest in history — because Johnson would not take the necessary political steps on farm prices.

Not so Gerald Ford. On Oct. 9, for more insurance, he imposed quotas on the importation of beef — just as cattlemen had been urging him to do. And just before Earl Butz was forced to resign — not by Gerald Ford but by public opinion and by the outrage of other Republicans at his racist remarks — Butz raised the support price on milk by 13 cents a hundredweight, an action hardly calculated to cost Ford votes in Wisconsin and Minnesota.

This is, of course, the season for presidents running for reelection to give their tenuous challenges a lesson in what the powers of the presidency really mean. And far more graphic than the grain price lesson Ford administered to Carter was the President's abrupt order for a new shipment of sophisticated weapons to Israel.

Ford informed Israeli authorities last Saturday that he was authorizing shipment to them of advanced night-fighting equipment and fiery concussion bombs.

At the time of Ford's order, staff work on such a major transfer of equipment had not been completed, most State and Defense Department officials were taken by surprise, and reports since have suggested that the items were not supposed to have been released to Israel at least until next year. In addition, Congress had not been informed of the decision before its adjournment Oct. 2, although the administration had been asked if major arms decisions were pending.

The order did follow, however, the foreign policy debate with Carter, in which he accused Ford of reducing military assistance to Israel and in which the President stumbled badly in trying to claim more active opposition to the Arab boycott than he had in fact displayed up to that moment.

This decision may well come back to haunt Ford — or his successor in the White House — when the Arabs demand the same equipment; remember the President's defense of his policy of massive arms sales to Saudi Arabia and Iran?

But what else is to be expected of a president who ditched the word debate when Ronald Reagan criticized it, who torpedoed diplomatic discussions with Cuba to win the Florida primary, who undercut his administration's negotiations with Panama to win the Texas primary (but still lost it) and who was willing to swallow a Reaganite platform plank that criticized his own and Dr. Kissinger's policies?

Or maybe that's just poetic justice. Wasn't it Kissinger, after all, who said "peace is at hand" in Vietnam on Oct. 26, 1972?

Animals Need Care

Lincoln, Neb. The time has come when the Humane Society of Lincoln must become more active in the field of animal welfare and prevention of cruelty to animals, especially now, as this is the season of rodeos, county fairs and the showing of our fine animals.

We all must be concerned about our animals' welfare, whether they are raised for profit and/or entertainment. If they are used or exploited for the entertainment of the public in any form where they could be injured, we must be concerned and look to the welfare of the animal by being prepared for any emergency that may occur.

At a recent rodeo I could not help but note the inexperienced animal handlers who caused some problems as well as disregarding the safety of the animals involved. In my opinion, these county fair rodeos and/or community sponsored rodeos must be better managed.

A responsible person should have absolute charge of all activities and should be capable of challenging or chastising anyone involved whether the safety of the animal or the contestant is involved. On an occasion when I or a citizen has questioned the mistreatment of an animal, no one assumes responsibility for the mistreatment or knows who actually is responsible.

It looks very bad to an outsider when someone displays such ignorance as to who is who, when it is common knowledge that everyone involved with a rodeo knows each other.

I believe that all exhibits which involve the exploitation of animals should extend invitations to all humane groups. They should be as welcome as the judges are to these exhibits and should be extended the same courtesies and privileges as the judges and be so recognized.

The public should be informed that a representative of their closest humane society is on the grounds, so that the good people who believe in the humane treatment of animals may be at ease and later express their concern to the representative about certain incidents.

The representative should not be met with scornful looks which turn into resentment. Let us forget, anyone who has worked with the public for many years can walk into a given area and feel the electrified air of resentment as he approaches or is recognized.

Democrats Bring War

Fremont, Neb. Liberal Jimmy Carter is on record as stating that he always supported the "no win" Vietnam war. Before you vote for him remember — another Democrat in the White House like Wilson, Roosevelt and Kennedy could easily mean another foreign war — more tens of thousands of our countrymen dead, more hundreds of thousands maimed and more billions of dollars wasted.

Every Democratic president elected to office in the 20th Century brought war to the American people even though the nation was unwilling. The presidents committed a crime in bringing war.

The most hideous example was, of course, the ten-year Vietnam war with a "no win" policy that Carter supported.

"Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet
Lest we forget, lest we forget" — (Kipling)

CONCERNED

Meat Import Solution

Lincoln, Neb. Most people would agree that if something is wrong, it should be fixed. If you bought a new house and the furnace turned on in summer and the air conditioner turned on in winter the seller would hear from you promptly.

This is about what is happening in the cattle industry — the more meat we produce, the higher the allowable imports. At a time when Nebraska farmers are forced to sell livestock because of the drought, present rates of imports the first six months of this year if allowed to continue the whole year, will allow more meat to come into the United States than is produced in the whole state of Nebraska.

In 1975, 2,190,000 calves were born; 3,177,000 were placed on feed; 4,777,000 were slaughtered at 5,043,449,000 pounds live weight.

If the United States imports two billion pounds of boned carcass beef this would equal approximately six billion pounds live weight because the imported boned meat contains only one-third of the live weight.

If this is more meat than is produced in the state, then it follows that this is a replacement of all of the packing house jobs in the whole state.

Happily there is a solution to the problem: —President Ford has the power if he chooses to use it to restrict imports.

—For the future the federal law should be changed so that price rather than volume regulates imports.

To protect the consumer, imports should be allowed entry when live beef prices exceed parity. To protect the producer, imports should be restricted when live beef prices are below parity.

JEAN KUBICEK

Carter Apologizes

Lincoln, Neb. Who will be our next president, Ford or Carter? So far neither candidate has been able to generate enthusiasm from the voters.

The debates have shown little more than a difference in appearances on TV. President Ford seems to be a stolid, somewhat lethargic speaker; Carter, a glib, rambling, shifty-eyed opportunist. Ford's boo-boo on the Soviets' domination of several European countries was unbelievable. Carter's Playboy interview in which he admitted to having violated some of the Ten Commandments was shocking.

President Ford, so far, has not apologized for his error. In contrast, Governor Carter apologized to the Almighty, which presumably clears him. Earlier Mr. Carter apologized for an ethnic statement which affronted blacks. Also, Mr. Carter apologized to Mrs. Lyndon Johnson for having accused the late President Johnson of being a liar. The governor also was quick to apologize to Billy Graham because his son had called Graham a mail-order preacher.

Mr. Carter espouses compassion, but when Mr. Butz apologized for having repeated a 50-year-old obscene story, he demanded that the culprit be "fired."

Mr. Carter again and again says, "trust me." These words are the same as are used by counterfeiters, con-artists, and crooks of all dimensions. Trust is something to be earned.

After two years as president Mr. Ford comes through as being honest and sincere. Mr. Carter emerges as a Monday morning quarterback.

Possibly Mr. Carter can apologize often enough to win. Mr. Butz apologized once and lost.

Successful, responsible and young

COLOR

The Journal-Star is proud to introduce Kevin Manbeck. Kevin's success as a Journal carrier is an indication of what can be accomplished with a little effort and the right attitude. He has won two Senior carrier awards and an Inland Press award, a national newspaper honor. These awards are recognition by the Journal-Star of carriers whose performance has been exceptional.

Kevin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Manbeck and lives at 5940 Sumner, two blocks away from his route. Kevin began his route in October of 1974 and has since shown an increase of 12 dailies and 12 Sundays. His prompt, courteous service and friendly manner has earned him the respect of his customers.

Kevin is 11 and attends Millard Lefler Junior High as a seventh grader. He enjoys studying Math and Life Science.

Kevin has been a Boy Scout for over a year and holds the rank of Tenderfoot. He recently became Assistant Patrol Leader of the Bear Patrol of Troop 48. Kevin's troop goes camping monthly, but he is a little apprehensive of January campouts. He enjoys Boy Scouts because he learns things he wouldn't ordinarily know.

Cold weather brings an end to Kevin's favorite activity, water skiing. He pursues this hobby as often as his family can get away to their cabin at Lake Vermillion in Minnesota. Kevin collects foreign coins and has coins from many South American and European countries. He and his father are presently building a go kart to race with others in his neighborhood. One of Kevin's favorite activities is attending junk sales and auctions. The profit from his route has allowed him to make some interesting purchases such as a chicken catcher he recently bought for his grandfather.

Kevin has established an excellent relationship with his customers, and enjoys getting to know them all. When a new family moves into his area, he is anxious to meet them and get them to try his paper. They are assured that he will always be prompt and courteous.

Kevin's parents feel his route has taught him responsibility. Kevin feels that it has given him a better look at life and that managing his route properly will help him later in life. He says he has learned to be a business person and also how to manage his money and records in a business manner. Besides helping him learn to work, Kevin will admit that the main advantage of his paper route is the money he earns.

The Lincoln Journal-Star would like to thank Kevin for his hard work and devotion. We strive to instill the spirit of success in all of our carriers and feel we are attaining our goal. Kevin has succeeded like many others, whether they received recognition or not. So as you read your paper today, think of the youngster who delivered it, he or she is quite a person.

The Senior Carrier Award

Senior carrier awards are presented by the Journal-Star in April and October of each year. They are awarded to carriers who, over a period of twelve months, have shown an increase in subscriptions as well as a record of courteous, prompt service and good route management. The Journal-Star would like to thank the carriers who have won this award, for their hard work at establishing themselves as successful carrier salespersons.

Regents Add $3.9 Million Ag Request

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

Almost $4 million in improvement money for the University of Nebraska Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources will pay for a 9.8% faculty salary increase, 12 new teaching positions and 28 new research and teaching programs.

Institute Vice Chancellor M. A. Massengale, students and state agricultural Council representatives ticked off the reasons for the $3.9 million request — below average faculty salaries, a 100% student enrollment growth and only 40 faculty growth in the past decade — the $4 billion the agricultural industry supplies to the state tax coffers.

But NU Regents needed little persuasion Friday morning as they unanimously approved the $3.9 million addition to the 1977-78 university budget request.

That $4 million raises the total university budget proposal to $165.7 million and the request for state tax dollars to $111.6 million.

If approved by the Unicameral, university tax support will rise by 18% above this year's $94.6 million funding level.

More than $1 million of the Institute funds will be used to strengthen present programs and another $1.2 million will be used for 28 new programs and positions.

These new programs include atmospheric drought research, soil management water movement, energy use and conservation, needs of Nebraska's elderly, a stalk not microbiologist, an urban entomologist and a veterinary science pathologist.

New positions will also be added to some of the outstate research stations and new faculty will be added for ornamental horticulture, 4-H and youth development, outdoor education and extension horse specialist.

More than $128,000 will also be used to add three staff members in the water excellence program who will work in drought tolerance and water-use efficiency of plants, water conservation engineering and expansion of the information program.

In other action the regents tabled for one month a new policy on the disclosure of Medical Center doctors' professional fees.

The Unicameral has been trying unsuccessfully to get information on how much physicians and surgeons on the center staff make for outside work, in addition to their salaries.

Under the proposed policy all outside income would be recorded on an individual basis and the information would be available to the NU president, Medical Center chancellor and the regents executive committee.

The totals would be generally available and the executive committee would have the authority to turn over individual income breakdowns to certain groups, such as the senators.

The regents also approved a common university calendar for the Omaha, Lincoln and parts of the Medical Center campuses for the 1978-79 school year.

Fall classes will begin August 28, 1978, and end Dec. 15 with vacations on Sept. 4, 5, Nov. 22-26.

Spring classes will begin Jan. 15, 1979, and end Friday May 4, with vacations March 25-April 1.

The regents also took the following action:

— Approved the academic freedom and tenure code for UNL.

— Approved a program statement calling for $422,000 in new money and $157,000 for operations for a proposed university data center to coordinate computer work.

— Delayed a $5 per semester student fee for the East Campus student union and a $1 surcharge on non-conference football games.

— Approved an agreement between NU and NU Foundation which will lead to construction of the federal Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service Laboratory.

— Approved application to seek $5 million in federal funds under new public works law for construction of an Omaha campus physical education building.

Writing Project Results To Get Board Hearing

The results of a special writing laboratory project conducted in the Lincoln Public Schools will be presented to members of the Lincoln Board of Education during their regular meeting Tuesday morning.

The project, aimed at finding an individualized method of teaching writing in the schools, has been tried at Lincoln Northeast and Pius X High Schools, according to a report by Paul Monkowski of the staff of Educational Service Unit 18.

Test results show that students improved in the areas of critical thinking, effectiveness and appropriateness in writing. Students also displayed productivity and on-task behavior in the writing laboratory, the report continued.

"When polled at the beginning and end of the semester, students at both schools perceived improvement in their writing skills after instruction. Parents generally felt that their child's writing skills were at least acceptable. Although they saw room for improvement," the report said.

Also on Tuesday's agenda is the adoption of a timetable for an addition to the West Lincoln School.

Virgil R. Eihusen, president and board chairman of Chief Industries Inc. of Grand Island, was elected president of the Nebraska Association of Commerce and Industry (NACI) at the organization's annual meeting.

He succeeds Walter E. Nolte of Lincoln, executive vice-president of First National Lincoln.

New NACI vice presidents are John H. Rebersdorf, Omaha, assistant controller of the Union Pacific Railroad Co., and C.O.

Emrich, Norfolk, president of C.O. Emrich Enterprises Inc.

Re-elected vice presidents were Ervin J. Schneider, Beatrice, marketing vice president of Oldfather's OK Tire Co.; Lee Jacobson, Lexington, president of Lexington Mill & Elevator Co.; Edwin J. Loutzenheiser Jr., Hastings, president of Great Plains Container Co.; and Dwight E. Dam, Valentine rancher.

Eugene A. Conley, Omaha, president of Guarantee Mutual Life Co. was elected treasurer.

Newspaper Rolls Off Presses, Published By Women Inmates

York — "Inside Insight," a paper published by and for the inmates at the Nebraska Center for Women in York is finally off the presses.

After a month of preparation, the mimeographed paper came out a week ago, with the intent of "giving the girls something to do and getting them involved," according to one of the editors.

The cooperation of center superintendent Jackie Crawford and funding from the Law Enforcement Assistance Agency made the publication possible.

Staff training including a 10-lesson course in clerical arts for the two editors, combined with instruction in stencil making, plate making, spirit duplicator operation and punch and bindery operation.

The first edition was three legal-size pages, with hopes for more pages and a promise of one a month from the editors, according to center officials.

Douglas To Ask NU Fees Case Review

By The Associated Press
Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas said Friday that he intends to seek modifications in the court case involving control of the University of Nebraska.

Douglas said he would seek the changes from Lancaster County District Court Judge Samuel Van Pelt. He said he will ask for a rehearing on the portion of Van Pelt's ruling that grants the university Board of Regents full control over university-generated cash funds.

Douglas maintains that overall, the legislature was the real winner in the case. But he wants clarification on whether the ruling regarding cash funds includes tuition.

However, the attorney general said he would like the judge to go even further and change his opinion on whether the Unicameral has authority to include cash funds in appropriations directives.

"If the purpose of the lawsuit was to determine constitutionally who controls the university, the court clearly said constitutionally it is under the control of the legislature," Douglas said.

Douglas said the ruling may mean the Unicameral will have to change some procedures.

"It merely means the legislature could at the next session change those procedures and those matters if found had been done improperly and get the same results," Douglas said.

He said one questionable area in legislating within an appropriations bill. He said a separate bill giving the university instructions could rectify that legislative matter.

Regents To Ask For 'Devaney Bill'

The Bob Devaney Sports Center should be the official name of the yet unnamed University of Nebraska sports complex, the NU Regents said Friday.

The regents are asking state legislators to change state law, which says that no building can be named after an active state employee, for this one building. Devaney is UNL athletic director.

UNO Student Regent Steve

Shovers tried to elicit some support for a "Terry Carpenter Sports Complex," named after the former state senator who initiated the legislation boosting the price of cigarettes by a nickel to raise money for the center.

School Board Members Want Local Tax Relief

School officials surveyed "still strongly favor substantial property tax relief" by state funds to support public schools, the Nebraska State School Boards Association president said Friday.

Irv Schwartz of Hildreth said NSSBA policy, determined annually by member delegates, calls for 45-50% support of public schools operating costs from state-collected funds.

Of the 807 persons surveyed at NSSBA's 12 district meetings last month, 62.95% favored continuing that policy. Schwartz said another 12% believed the 45-50% level is too low.

He said 804 individuals also signed petitions at the sessions requesting the governor and Legislature to cooperate to enact a law to provide "meaningful property-tax relief by transferring at least 45%" of public elementary and secondary schools operating costs from local property taxes to state-collected taxes.

Schwartz said as little as 1% sales tax and an equal amount from the state income tax would bring the state's contribution to public school operations up to about 40%. He said that wouldn't mean an increase in taxes paid but would substantially reduce local property taxes.

Regarding the property tax relief survey, questionnaires were completed by 468 school board members, 214 school administrators, 65 spouses and 60 invited guests.

Schwartz said he'll ask the NSSBA legislative and resolutions committee to meet prior to the Nov. 18 Delegate Assembly to prepare recommendations to implement the property tax relief policy.

LEAA Agency Defended

Scottsbluff — An official of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration said Friday that the agency was never designed to reduce crime on its own. Regional Administrator Marvin Rudd of Kansas City told a group of law enforcement personnel in Scottsbluff that the original purpose of the agency was to provide "seed money" for local projects. The crime rate, he added, is a complicated problem related to housing, poverty and other factors.

New Report Cards Approved

North Platte — A revised report card system in North Platte public schools will rate elementary school students on an effort and achievement scale for the remainder of the year. The new system, approved earlier this week by the board of education, will allow fourth through sixth graders to have the traditional number grades in addition to the new ratings.

Commuter Air Service Sought

Hastings — The Southern Route Commission may ask for a $3 million grant from the Old West Regional Commission to set up a commuter air service for the area. A lease-purchase agreement by a private commuter service will be studied, the commission said. Federal Transportation Secretary William Coleman endorsed the proposal during a recent Lincoln visit, they added.

Northeast Tech Being Rated

Norfolk — A two-member visitation team from the North Central Association of Schools and Colleges visited the campus of Northeast Technical Community College in Norfolk this week to assess the college's progress as a Candidate for Accreditation. College president Robert P. Cox said that while the accreditation is voluntary, the school is seeking it to improve "the quality of education offered at the school." Full accreditation is expected by the summer of 1978, he added.

Hearing Set In Abduction

Hastings — An Oct. 29 preliminary hearing has been set for Robert Rupperecht, 24, accused in the abduction of a 5-year-old girl on her way to school Tuesday. Rupperecht, who is undergoing psychiatric examinations, is being held in on a $50,000 bond.

Doniphan Condemnation Proceedings Get Started

Grand Island (UPI) — Condemnation proceedings against seven Doniphan landowners, who live on the 640-acre site selected by the Great Plains Power Agency for a coal-fired power plant, officially got underway Thursday.

The agency plans to acquire the 640 acres so it can construct a 150-megawatt power plant, which would serve Grand Island and Hastings.

A 10-day hearing before the Nebraska Review Board on the agency's application to construct the unit concluded Sept. 22. Proceedings of the hearing were being transcribed, and the board was expected to render a decision on the application within a few months.

Six condemnation notices were delivered Thursday to landowners on the proposed site, and officials indicated the seventh notice would be delivered Friday. The notices say the two cities intend to acquire — by condemnation — the land within section 33, the name for the 640-acre tract.

According to the notices, three appraisers appointed by Hall County Judge Joseph Martin will visit section 33 on Nov. 18.

Landowners and interested parties will be allowed to tell the appraisers what damages are involved in the acquisition of the land, the notices say.

The notices also indicate that the appraisers will meet in the county courtroom to assess the damages after their visit to section 33.

An eighth landowner on the proposed site received a temporary injunction from the Hall County District Court. The injunction temporarily blocks the agency from condemning the landowner's 160-acre tract.

Officials Report Grain Thieves Begin Scattered Fall Harvest

Omaha (AP) — Grain thieves are beginning their annual fall harvest, according to law enforcement agencies.

Two Burt County farmers left loaded grain trucks in fields overnight this week and found both the grain and the trucks missing the next morning. One truck contained 250 bushels of soybeans valued at $1,500 and the other carried corn worth about $1,500, officials said.

In addition, grain thefts from isolated storage bins were reported by the Nebraska State Patrol.

Thefts of grain from isolated storage bins in Douglas, Sarpy, Cass and Saunders counties also have been reported to authorities.

George Fauver, an investigator with the State Patrol Criminal Investigation Department, said one recent theft of 250 bushels of stored soybeans in Saunders County was the second theft this year from the farmer.

Last spring, 200 bushels of soybeans were taken from the same bin, Fauver said. The latest theft included tools and parts of a nearby tractor.

"At $6 a bushel for soybeans, it doesn't take much of a theft to run up a sizeable loss," Fauver said.

He said identifying stolen grain is an impossible task unless the farmer mixes in numbered confetti, a system some farmers use. But the practice apparently isn't widespread in Nebraska, he said, probably because of the added cost.

Twenty-three counties in Nebraska have been officially declared agricultural disaster areas, Rep. Charles Thone, R-Nebr., announced Friday.

Hastings Display Scans Nostalgic Airplane Era

Hastings — Airborne nostalgia buffs in Hastings can see a display of aviation history that involved the community in the early 1900's.

The display, complete with a backdrop of an early era airport, is on the lower level of the Hastings Museum and covers the era of 1911-29, considered by many a heyday of aviation in the area.

According to exhibits specialist Jerry Dierfeldt, much of the display and background information was provided by Howard Franczen, chaplain at the Hastings Regional Center. The wheels of the "Pride of Hastings," about the only parts left of an experimental craft which saw several brief flights in the area, are included in the display.

"The Pride" was constructed on the third floor of the Ford garage, then located at First St. and Denver Ave. in downtown Hastings. The maiden flight was made May 11, 1929 from a field near the State Hospital. A subsequent flight, two days later, ended in a crash.

Undaunted, Harold Rudd rebuilt the craft and flew it again on July 2, 1929. On July 4, Rudd flew the craft again and crashed it, killing himself and injuring pilot Donald Tilden.

Hence came the end of aeronautical experimentation in Hastings, an era which began in 1909 when Jimmie Ward, a representative of the Curtiss Aeroplane Co. flew a Curtiss Pusher from the Hastings College campus where it had been assembled after being brought in on railroad. Over 8,000 people watched the flights which lasted for a total of 34 minutes and covered 35 to 40 miles.

A model of the Pusher is included in the display, along with other parts from the "Pride."

23 Nebraska Counties Named Disaster Areas

Disaster designations by the acting secretary of agriculture makes the farmers in those counties eligible for loans from the Farmers Home Administration at 5% interest.

The loan cannot exceed the amount the farmer lost because of the crop disaster. Most of the counties on the list were declared disaster areas because of drought but several suffered damage because of hail, according to Thone.

TRAVELERS... Melissa and Nighram were hit twice by cultural shock.

Youth in Action Afghanistan Took Getting Used To

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

Melissa and Nighram Johnson have been through two culture shocks — one when they arrived in Afghanistan, and the second when they came back to America 18 months later.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Johnson, 2701 Sewell, Melissa and Nighram found themselves transplanted to Kabul, capital of the southwest Asian country set between Iran and West Pakistan.

Eleven-year-old Melissa recalls her first impressions: "They're so primitive there. I'm not used to seeing camels walking down the street. But I got used to it very fast."

The family lived inside a compound secured by eight-foot high walls "mainly to keep the wolves out in winter and to prevent stealing," Melissa explains. And all the raw vegetables had to be soaked in iodine tablets to disinfect them.

Nighram, 18, remembers his initial reaction as the airplane hovered over the mud houses and snow-covered ground with no cleared roads or runway in sight: "Is THAT where we're going to live for the next two years?" he asked of anyone within ear range.

But first impressions aren't everything the youngsters came to realize.

They got used to the snowy winters and the very dry summers in the mile-high landlocked city. "Every summer day there was a dust storm at three o'clock. You could almost set your watch by it," Nighram says.

Neither is quite sure he or she could ever get used to the Afghan drivers who drive with their lights on during the day but not at night.

And to get the buses started in the mornings, the drivers would light fires underneath to warm up the engines.

Nighram had a chance to do some traveling outside the capital city with an Afghan culture class at the American International School he and Melissa attended.

If he thought Afghan city-dwellers were unsophisticated, he found their rural counterparts "totally primitive." Yet he was pleased to visit such natural wonders as the bottomless lake and natural dam at Band-I-Amir and to practice some of the native language he had picked up.

Peru State Plans For New Gym

Peru — Officials of Peru State College have announced a new plan to raise "seed money" for a much-needed gymnasium and physical education complex on the college campus.

Athletic Director Jerry Joy and Peru President Dr. Doug Pearson announced the plans during a meeting with the Auburn Kiwanis Club earlier this week.

Joy said plans call for a fund-raising campaign with a goal of $500,000, the amount of money needed to pay off the bonded indebtedness of Majors Hall, a dormitory complex on campus which hasn't been used on a full-time status for several years. When the form is debt-free, plans would call for giving the complex to the state along with plans for remodeling it into a health center, office space facility.

In addition to house a gymnasium and indoor track, along with swimming pool and tennis courts could also be built with a total price tag of $2 million, half the projected $4 million cost for a new facility, Joy said.

Pearson told the Kiwanis that lack of capital construction funds on the state level, a situation which has delayed construction for several years.

The fund raising drive, labeled as "A fair share for higher education in southeast Nebraska," by Pearson, will seek pledges from area businessmen and college alumni and friends. The pledges, to be collected over a three-year period would be handled by the Peru Achievement Foundation.

The entire project, Pearson explained, would not result in an increase in taxes for the area, something which should be a major selling point.

3 From Reservation Charged With Assault Of Macy Girl, 14

Omaha (AP) — Three residents of the Omaha Indian Reservation have been charged with the assault of a 14-year-old Macy girl.

Harvey Lee Fremont, 26; Francis Fremont, 23 and his 19-year-old wife, Hermine, are charged with the Oct. 10 beating of Janet Edna Cline.

Aurietis said the girl is hospitalized with serious head injuries at St. Joseph Hospital in Sioux City, Iowa.

During a hearing Friday before U.S. Magistrate Richard C. Peck, a U.S. attorney said the assault apparently stemmed from a family feud.

Peck set Oct. 22 as a preliminary hearing date, said he would appoint attorneys for the three, and placed bond at $1,000.

2 Years After Mishap, Man Dead

Omaha (AP) — Raymond Wilke, 41, Omaha, has died of injuries suffered in an auto accident two years ago, the family said.

A family member said Wilke died Thursday in a Grand Island Hospital.

He had been in a coma since the September 1975 accident in Omaha. Wilke was injured when his car was struck by another vehicle as he made a left turn.

Omaha Dognaper Pleads Guilty

Omaha (AP) — "Dognaper" Paul V. Collins, 22, has pleaded guilty to blackmail in Douglas County District Court.

Collins was charged in September with stealing a French poodle, then demanding a ransom of $3,000 from its owner.

Douglas County sheriff's deputies arrested Collins and recovered the dog, which was returned to the owner, Mary Ann White.

District Judge John Clark accepted Collins' plea and ordered a presentence investigation by the audit probation office.

Blair Freshman Top Showman At Block, Bridle

The tale of the ugly duckling was re-enacted Friday night during the 1976 University of Nebraska-Lincoln Block and Bridle Club's Little A-S-B-B-B showmanship contest.

But in this case, the duckling was a lamb.

Linda Johnson, a freshman pre-veterinary student from Blair, showed what, in her words, "had to be the homeliest lamb there was" in the event and received championship honors over about 45 other livestock showmen.

Overall reserve champion honor went to Kevin Jorgensen, 21, of Exeter, who earlier won first place in swine showmanship.

Other species winners were:

Horse: Mrs. Gay Given Kimball, junior from Elkhorst; dairy: Mark Meyenberg, freshman from Genoa; and beef: Mark Iodence, freshman from Hemingford.

"WHY DO THE HEATHEN RAGE?"
Psalms 2 and Acts 4:25

"I will also forget thy children!" Is there not something wrong with the young people today? Maybe some light can be thrown on the situation by considering this quotation, for it is God Himself speaking. "My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge: because thou hast rejected knowledge, I will also reject thee, that thou shalt be no priest to me: seeing thou hast forgotten the Law of Thy God, I will also forget thy children!" Hosea 4:6.

Weigh these words! It is a terrible message of judgement! Destroyed on account of, "lack of knowledge" or ignorance. Rejection and ignorance of "The Law of Our God!" The results: they shall be no priest to God, and God will forget their children, seeing they have forgotten "The Law of Thy God!" — Protestantism gives us the true teaching of God's Word that every sincere believer is a priest unto his God. Have we not forgotten "The Law of Our God?" We "breach the Sabbath" and destroy "The goods of God!" We mock and scorn His Laws regarding the home, marriage and sex relations. Our land is lousy with murderers, and yet quite a number of our states have decided that The Almighty did not know what He was talking about when He said: "Whoso killeth any person, the murderer shall be put to death — Moreover ye shall take no satisfaction for the life of a murderer, which guilty of death; but he shall be surely put to death — So ye shall not pollute the land wherein ye are: for blood it defileth the land; and the land cannot be cleansed of the blood that is shed therein, but by the blood of him that shed it. Defile not therefore the land which ye shall inhabit, wherein I dwell: for I The Lord dwell among the children of Israel." Numbers 35:30-34.

Our land is also filled with stealing, lying and covetousness. If this writer's appraisal is correct even many of the laws of our nation and states encourage its people to covet that which in God's sight belongs to another instead of teaching and urging them to take heed to one of the very first laws of God to fallen man to live by: "The sweat of thy own brow." We are trying to run over Almighty God Himself! And in order to make peace with men who deny and blaspheme The God we claim to serve, we turn and make war on God Himself! SHALL WE HAVE PEACE WITH MAN BY MAKING WAR ON GOD ALMIGHTY? Was it not Bill Shakespeare who said: "What fools these mortals be!"

"My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge!" What is your vocation, doctor, lawyer, teacher, etc.? Say you are a lawyer. If you have spent that same amount of time on your law books, court cases, decisions, etc., as you have on studying the Law of God and His judgments, what kind of lawyer would you be? If a doctor, what sort of doctor would you be if you had spent no more time studying the necessary subjects than you have spent learning of The Creator of the body — "We are fearfully and wonderfully made" — and taking heed to the injunction and invitation of The Great Physician to "Learn of Me?" Whatever one's vocation may be, their success or failure doubtless depends on their knowledge of the subject and their ability to make application of same. But fail or succeed, it is only temporal. But the knowledge of God, or lack of it, has to do with our Eternal Life, or eternal death! God says: "Cursed be the man that trusteth in man," and "He that trusteth in his own heart is a fool!"

"Search the scriptures, they testify of Me," said Jesus Christ. "The Scriptures cannot be broken." Search and you will find the Almighty pleading with you:

"And The Lord said unto me, — O that there were such an heart in them, that they would fear me, and keep all my commandments always, that it might be well with them, and their children forever!" Deut. 5:28-29.

"Oh that my people had hearkened unto me, and Israel had walked in my ways! I should have soon subdued their enemies, and turned My hand against their adversaries. The haters of The Lord should have submitted themselves unto Him: but their time should have endured forever. He should have fed them with the finest of the wheat; and with honey out of the rock should I have satisfied thee." Psalm 81:13-16.

"Thus saith The Lord, thy Redeemer, — O that thou hadst hearkened to my commandments! Then had thy peace been as a river, and thy righteousness as the waves of the sea: thy seed had been as the sand." Isaiah 48:17-18.

For the sake of the children we should not forget the "Law of Our God!"

Dance Spans Generations

There is something refreshing, so nostalgic, about a square dance: the groups of human squares, ages spanning generations, all dancing together to whoops, kicks and yee-hahs, the rustle and swish of skirts stiffened by layers of petticoats over Pettipants.

Yes, square dancers will be square dancers — whether it was the dozen or so that braved a chilly Thursday evening last week to dance at Gateway Mall, or the nearly 2,000 who came here from around the Midwest to the recent sixth annual convention of the Nebraska Square and Round Dance Association, or the 35 who attended the regular dance of the cross-trailers at the United Automobile Assoc. Building at 18th and High Sts.

Square dancing comes from a breed of entertainment that Roscoe Roeder of Lincoln described as "good, clean recreation."

"You seldom see people partake of an alcoholic beverage at a square dance," Roeder said.

"You just can't square dance if you have," his wife Norma added.

Roscow and Norman Roeder, who first met eight years ago at a square dance coordinated the state convention, which was attended by dancers not only from Nebraska, but also from Minnesota, Iowa, South Dakota, Colorado, Missouri and Kansas.

Square dancing, descended from the dances of the American pioneers, combined folk dances from the native countries of the settlers. But, through its Americana tradition, the form has become more complex and sophisticated since the frontier days, when travelers on the Oregon Trail congregated around the campfire to dance away fears of the unknown.

When Roeder first took up square dancing in 1941, he learned 25 basic calls. Now, a beginner takes 20 or 25 lessons in a course to learn at least 75 basics.

Many square dancers also learn round dancing, where couples use steps reminiscent of the two-step or waltz.

Until the late 40s, callers — the ones who shout out the instructions to the dancers — used live bands — usually consisting of two fiddles, two guitars and a piano. Most callers use records which are amplified through a public address system.

"You never see unhappy people square dancing," Mrs. Roeder said. "You make a lot of friendships."

But the number of square dance clubs in Lincoln has dwindled since the 1940s, when between 20 to 25 groups thrived. Other "family recreation" activities, like bowling and camping, have taken its place, Roeder said.

Marriage Reads Like A Hitchcock Thriller

DEAR ABBY: I just read about the girl who spent most of her honeymoon writing thank-you notes for her wedding gifts. Well, I've got that one beat.

On my wedding night the dude I married sat up all night loading and unloading shotguns. When I finally got him to come to bed, all he did was fall asleep.

I should have known he was a dingbat right then and there, but he'd been awfully good to me before we were married; he was a perfect gentleman, and he never laid a hand on me.

He's a millionaire and hardly ever works. He bought me a car, a real fur coat and a diamond watch. I think he's a dope eater because he's high for a spell then fades fast. He's 40 and I'm 24, and have my whole life ahead of me. The big problem is that he doesn't care one thing about sex and I do. He swore if he ever caught me with another dude, he'd kill me. I'm his fifth wife. Should I stick around or not?

EVERYTHING BUT LOVE
DEAR EVERYTHING: So far, your marriage reads like a Hitchcock thriller, but you'll have to write the ending yourself. Stick around if you like, but a man who threatens to kill is more than a dingbat. He's dangerous.

DEAR ABBY: While

watching a baseball game with two of my girlfriends, some boys from another town asked up how old we were.

One girl said she was 13, and the other said she was 14. They're both 12.

The girl who said she was 14 was trying to get a boyfriend. I think if a girl wants a boyfriend she should give her right age, don't you?

TWELVE AND HONEST

DEAR TWELVE: Honesty is always the best policy. Lying about one's age can become habit-forming. Teenagers add a year or two, but after 40, they start subtracting.

DEAR ABBY: With reference to the letter from the woman who said she liked her neighbors but was satisfied with her own religion and resented their trying to sell her on theirs (Mormon).

That sweet woman had only to say to the young missionaries, "Thank you, but no thank you," and that would have been the end of it.

We as members are asked to extend friendship to neighbors, to tell them about the Gospel and to be missionaries wherever we are, in the way we live and act — by example.

Our missionaries apply no pressure, knowing that man was given his free agency to choose his own religion.

We are converts to the Church of Jesus Christ Latterday Saints, and can attest to the fact that our conversion has brought harmony, happiness and fulfillment to our entire family.

GLAD WE LISTENED

DEAR ABBY: The woman who was embarrassed by her "friend" calling attention to her wig reminds me of a "friend" I once had who always called attention to the fact that I wore dentures.

"They look SO real," she would say, "Are they the kind you take out at night, or do you sleep in them?"

One day I reached the boiling point and told her that the next time she mentioned my false teeth in the presence of others, I would fix her so that she would need not only false teeth but a wired jawbone to go with them! She knew I wasn't kidding, so that was the last time she mentioned my teeth.

Bridge

Three Notrump Bid Infectious

By B. JAY BECKER
East dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

East	South	West	North
1♣	3 NT	Pass	Pass
Dble	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead — queen of hearts.

A strange disease has recently infected some of our top bridge players. It is called the gambling three notrump. According to this convention, used mostly in tournament circles, an opening three notrump bid (or overcall) is based not on a balanced hand containing 26 points, but rather on a long and powerful minor suit and without regard to the rest of the hand. Sometimes there is a high card or two on the side, sometimes not.

The convention has the great merit of serving as a preemptive bid if partner has a poor hand, and also often leads to a good result if partner has either a moderate or a very good hand.

However, the convention is fraught with danger because, once a player becomes addicted to it, the urge to use it is almost irresistible. Unless both partners know how to treat the disease, it may prove fatal — as it did in this case.

The deal occurred in a match between Switzerland and Italy in the annual European championship. The Italian East opened the bidding with one club (artificial, showing at least 17 points), and the Swiss South overcalled with a gambling three notrump, which East doubled.

North should have rescued with four clubs — it was obvious that his partner's long suit was clubs and that notrump would be disastrous. But the fact is that North passed three notrump doubled, and now the fat was in the fire.

West led the queen of hearts and East took the ace, felling declarer's king. After cashing the king of spades, East returned a heart and the end result was that the Italian East-West pair took all the tricks to score a resounding 2,600-point penalty!

P.S. Italy won the match.

Charges May Be Filed In Shooting

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The Lancaster County attorney's office may file charges Monday against a 32-year-old Lincoln man for the shooting of an Omaha man Thursday night.

Gene Gillette, 909 N. 30th St., was being questioned Friday by police in connection with the shooting of Anthony Asta of Omaha. Asta was shot once in the throat outside Gillette's north Lincoln home. Asta remained in critical condition at a local hospital.

The shooting apparently erupted after an argument over a marijuana transaction.

Although authorities have not charged Gillette with the shooting, he was arraigned late Friday for possession of marijuana with intent to deliver. Police seized 500 pounds of marijuana at Gillette's home and confiscated equipment apparently used to process marijuana.

Deputy County Atty. Steve Yungblut said authorities still need to talk to two men who were at the scene. Police are looking for those men whose testimony was termed "real critical" by Yungblut.

If the missing witnesses can't be found by Monday, the county attorney's office will "have to sit down and assess the matter," Yungblut said.

Police took six people into custody following the shooting Thursday night. Only one other person, Carolyn Logel, 25, has been charged with possession of marijuana.

Ms. Logel, also known as Carolyn Stegall, 909 N. 30th, became ill and has been hospitalized at Lincoln General Hospital, authorities said. The other people were questioned as material witnesses and have been released.

County Judge Jeffere Chevront said a preliminary hearing date on the marijuana charge will be Oct. 26 for Gillette, who is being held in custody for further questioning.

Asta apparently was shot after an argument over a "drug debt," Assistant Police Chief Roger LaPage said.

Four Omahans apparently drove to Lincoln Thursday to collect money from Gillette which they said was owed to them for a marijuana transaction.

Gillette reportedly refused and an argument ensued, LaPage said. Asta, who was outside the house, was shot during the argument with a small caliber pistol.

Two of the Omaha men assisted Asta to a car and drove away. Neighbors called police about the shooting and police apprehended the parties at 23rd and Q St. The men said they were driving Asta to a hospital.

In the meantime two others back at the house took the pistol and his it. Police later apprehended those men about 4 a.m. Friday and found the pistol by a tree about a block from the house on N. 30 St.

LaPage said police seized a number of weapons hidden in the car Asta was riding in, including a riot gun, a shotgun, a .357 Magnum, a small derringer, a baseball bat and a bank of rope.

At the house, police seized 500 pounds of marijuana, a drying rack in the attic and a press for turning marijuana into 2.2-pound "bricks", LaPage said. The street value of the marijuana was placed at $80,000 by police.

UNL Homecoming Winners Announced

In the festivities surrounding homecoming, there must of course be winners. Taking first prize for a homecoming display was a project by Chi Omega sorority and Beta Sigma Psi fraternity featuring a Cornhusker that rings a bell with a wildcat's head by bringing a festooned arm down on the cat's tail. Homecoming royalty consisted of Nancy Peck, a junior in music from Tekamah, and Kevin Meyer, a junior in business from Beatrice.

Electricity Demand Slowing In Lincoln

The Lincoln Electric System estimated Friday that demands for electricity will grow at a less rapid pace over the next decade than over the last ten years.

Lower demand means the city won't have to spend as much building new electric facilities as soon as anticipated, LES Power Supply Manager Phil Michaels said.

The revised estimate of future electricity needs in Lincoln marks a sharp downward revision in LES's growth pattern forecasted last year. During the next 11 years, electricity sales will increase annually at 6.3%. That projection is down from the average 7.7% annual growth rate experienced over the last decade.

The 6.3% projection also is less than the 8.4% growth rate projected by LES a year ago, Michaels said.

The slower growth in the demand for more electricity will mean LES can postpone $14 million worth of construction included in the utility's six-year capital improvements program. Additionally, the lower growth rate may mean a power plant LES is thinking about building in Lincoln may not be needed until 1985, instead of 1983.

LES Administrator Walt Canney said officials couldn't say whether that slower growth rate will mean a slowdown on electric rate hikes.

LES is lowering its forecasted annual growth rate for several reasons. Demand for electricity is down, partly due to energy conservation.

Also, the population isn't growing as fast as predicted, meaning fewer new customers.

And, LES officials admitted, the higher electric rates apparently have contributed to the slower growth, although officials don't know whether the price of electricity will continue to be a major factor in the consumption of electricity.

Freedom's Urge Ends In Scuffle

Freedom must have beckoned to a Lincoln man being arraigned in Lancaster County Court Friday for grand larceny.

After being charged, Fred White was being escorted back to jail by Police Officer Stanley Chaulis who was stopped outside the courtroom by Deputy County Atty. Jan Dutton.

Chaulis said he heard something, turned around and White hauled off and hit him in the mouth. White bounded down the escalator and out County City Building front doors.

Chaulis and Dutton both followed in hot pursuit, along with several other police officers.

Several blocks away, Chaulis caught up with White at 11th and H St. Before the scuffle ended, White hit the officer again — in the mouth.

Chaulis was treated at Lincoln General Hospital for a cut and may have some loose teeth, but he was back on the job later in the day.

White, in the meantime, has some new charges that he has to think about.

Judges Ask Delay Of Court Merger

Two Lincoln Municipal Court judges and representatives of the Nebraska Bar Association asked the Legislature's Judiciary Committee Friday to stall the merger of the municipal and state court systems.

The committee is studying the proposal for possible 1977 legislation. It would create what committee Chairman Roland Luedtke called "a two-tier" system of county and district courts.

Presiding Municipal Court Judge Donald Grant of Lincoln said action now would be premature and redundant, in light of a study being undertaken by the Bar Association.

Senior Municipal Court Judge Thomas McManus of Lincoln said abolishing the municipal court system would pose constitutional questions, because of judges' tenured appointments. McManus said "homogenizing" the court system would not mean substantial savings. He said only one position, either city or county clerk, probably would be abolished.

Attorney Thomas Tye of Kearney, bar study coordinator, asked the committee to wait until the study's scheduled completion in 1977. A series of statewide hearings are slated until February, he said.

The committee plans a second hearing on the proposed merger next Friday in Omaha.

Fire Damages UNL Coliseum

Lincoln fire units were called by University of Nebraska campus security about 3 a.m. Friday to put out a fire in the old coliseum on the UNL campus.

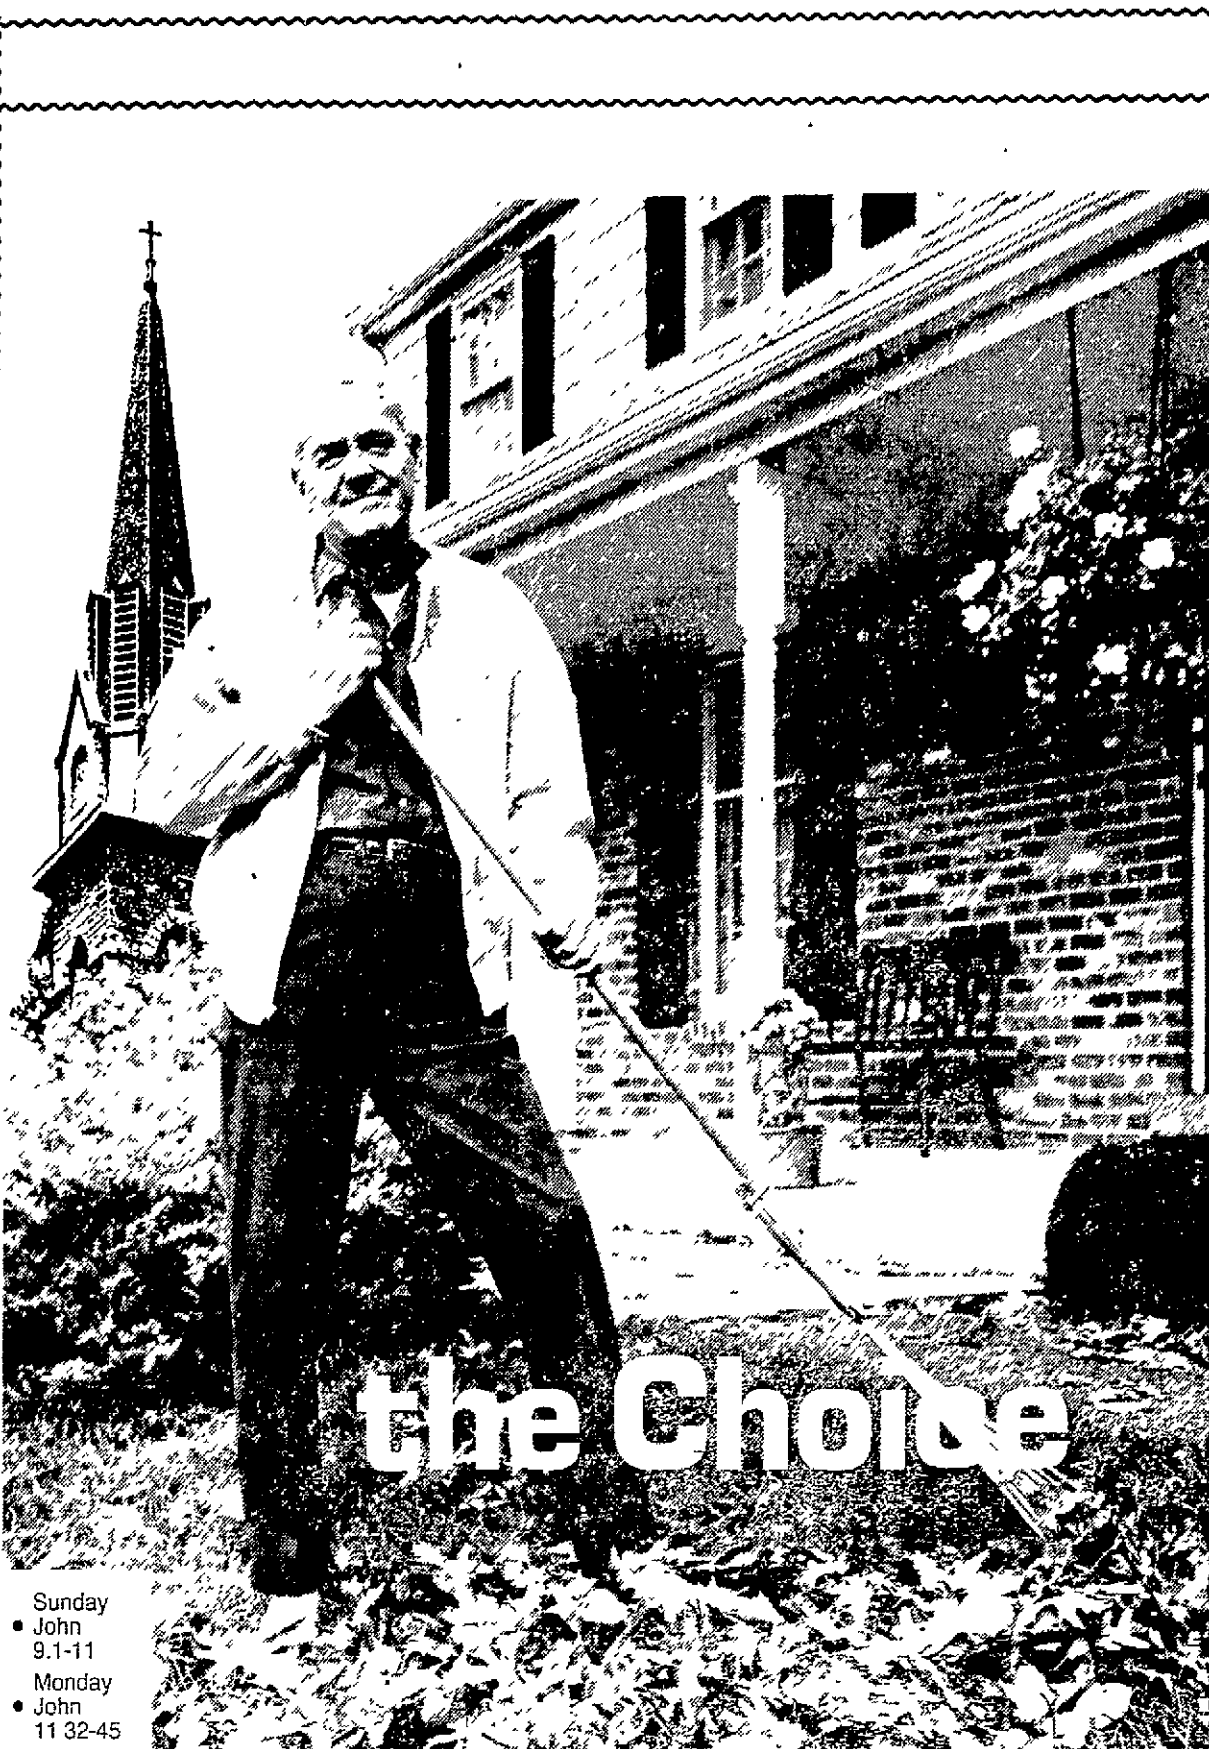

Officials said they believe two piles of steel wool buffing pads saturated with a resurfacing fluid ignited a fire by spontaneous combustion.

Two holes about three feet in diameter were burned in the middle of the variety playing floor, officials said. No estimate of damages was available.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST By SIDNEY OMARR

Saturday, October 16, 1976

The man with Venus in Cancer prefers an older or mature woman, someone who can look after him, cook his meals, listen to his dreams, deal with his moods, aspirations. The man with Venus in Cancer is sensitive, loyal, fond of home life, attracted to a woman who is practical and has a sense of humor. The native — male with Venus in Cancer — is complicated, affectionate, stubborn, creative, somewhat psychic and in need of a private cheering section. Are you ready for him, ladies?

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You talk more to family members — lines of communication are firmly established. You understand costs, quality, time and motion. Older person plays important role. Check details, ask questions. There will be a romantic interlude!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent on movement, curiosity, fun and games. Ability to perceive picture as a whole. The bits and pieces no longer are confusing. Relatives are here. You hear from them. You may find that you have unannounced visitor — or visitors!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): See beyond the immediate. Don't be lulled by one who touts a get-rich-quick scheme. Means avoid deception, self and otherwise. Money is main ingredient — valuables, personal possessions are very much in picture.

CANCER (June 21-July 21): Lunar cycle high — trust judgment, intuition. Timing is target. You win popularity contest. Build, take advantage of business and romantic prospects. Get priorities lined up. In sync and focus. Capricorn — and another Cancer — could figure prominently.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 22): You get insight to what is needed as contrast to desire. Aries, Libra figure prominently. Romance, intrigue, temporary confinement — these, too, could be on agenda. Start, refuse to be weighed down by burden not rightly your own.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Emphasis on heart's desire, fulfillment, creative endeavors, new friends, desires. Leo, Aquarius persons figure in picture. Welcome chance to exercise greater independence of thought, action. You receive meaningful compliment from member of opposite sex.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Protect personal business. You are those who are supposed experts may lack your intuitive understanding of situation. Know it and refuse to be intimidated by fast-talkers, slick high rollers.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Expand horizons. You show more interest now in philosophical and religious studies, subjects. Open lines of communication. Be flexible, curious — keep open mind and don't neglect humor. Gemini, Sagittarius persons could be in picture.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Persistence now is your ally. Dig deep. Concentrate on task at hand. Refuse to be dissuaded by one who promises "occult wonders." You are close to achieving goal, obtaining answers, gaining a profit. Know it and be confident. Partner, mate, money are involved.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You get "feedback" from one who has been exploring on your behalf — be analytical. Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Love key approach is best of row. Don't attempt to force issues, views. Give attention to basic material, health, diet, routine tasks which recently were neglected. Family member may make gesture of conciliation. Be receptive, diplomatic.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Creativity, change, children figure in your scenario. Emphasis on affairs of heart, emotional responses, feeling, affection. You verify now that you do not live by bread alone. Strive to balance logic and impulse.

IF OCTOBER 16TH IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are a person of glamour, somewhat mysterious, introspective and talented. You are due now for greater freedom of thought, action and choice. If single, marital status is due to change. Places, Virgo persons play important roles in your life. Domestic adjustment, possible change of residence indicated in November.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 5 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 4, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Fourth-Quarter Rally Lifts Fairbury, 19-15

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau
Fairbury — Trailing for most of the three quarters, Class B's seventh-ranked Jeffs stormed back in the final period Friday night to edge visiting Seward, 19-15.

But it took a last-minute pass interception by Dwaine Ebeling to finally ice the game for Fairbury. After a Fairbury offense gave the advancing Bluejays a first down on the Jeff 20, the sophomore picked off the pass to end Seward's final threat.

The Jeffs had come from behind at the start of the fourth quarter, with quarterback Rick Moore capping a 60-yard drive with a one-yard sneak. The tally had been set up as another sophomore, Tom Oswald, also managed an interception. The first half had been an entirely different story, with underdog Seward scoring first and then leading at halftime, 15-13. "They just ran us into the ground to begin with, but we made some defensive adjustments," said the winners' coach Ron Oswald. "Our TD just before the half also gave us a big lift."

That effort also was sparked by a sophomore, Bob Barron, who recovered a midfield Seward fumble. Offensive pacer Jim Rice then loosed a 25-yard run followed by a 6-yard touchdown. His placement moved Fairbury within two points, 15-13.

Seward's first score, an eight-yard sprint by quarterback Marc Felix, climaxed a 74-yard drive in the first 5:50 of the game. Dan Gill then swept end for a two-point conversion.

In the second period, Al Dollahide recovered a fumble on Jeff 20 and made the count 14-6 with a 3-yard touchdown run. Jeff Krull kicked the extra point.

Fairbury opened its scoring in the second quarter on a six-yard run by Benny Rogers, set up by a 25-yard pass from Moore to Rice. The conversion failed on an attempted pass.

Seward — 8 7 0 0-15
Fairbury — 0 6 13 0-19
Seward — Felix 8 run; Dollahide 3 run; Seward — Gill run; Krull kick.
Fairbury — Rogers 6 run; Rice 6 run; Moore one run. PAT — Ric kick.

Pius X Harriers Win

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
Prep Sports Writer

The fact that Tim Duggan's score didn't count in the team standings during Friday's District B-1 cross country meet at Pioneer's Park didn't bother the Lincoln Pius X junior.

Actually, Pius coach George O'Boyle was pleased with the fact that Duggan could finish 10th out of the 45 participants and still not count in the "Boils" runaway win.

That meant Pius, with the second, third, fourth and fifth place finishers in the district test, would take a strong contingent to Friday's state meet at Kearney.

"The only thing I regret," Duggan told O'Boyle after the scores had been posted. "Is that I didn't get that Auburn kid (ninth place finisher Dave Allen)."

"That's OK," O'Boyle answered. "You can get him next week."

Doug Morin led the Thunderbolts touring the 2 1/2 mile course in 13:18, five seconds behind first place finisher Todd Hornung of Norris.

But O'Boyle found the most pleasure in comparing the times of his balanced team, the kind of team that wins state meets.

Just 14 seconds separated Pius' top four finishers as junior Dwight Groth placed third at 13:24, Jeff Barry fourth at 13:36 and Jerry Spethman fifth with a 13:32 clocking.

Of that foursome, Groth is in his first year of cross country and Spethman is only a sophomore.

"Our situation is a good one because if the Top man doesn't have a good meet, the others are always there to make up for it," O'Boyle said. "As for Duggan, he may not count for our team score, but when he finishes high like he did, you've got to remember that he's keeping someone out of that place and pushing them down one."

"We've got what we've felt all along are five real good runners," O'Boyle added. "Even though Spethman is only a sophomore, he runs like a junior or senior because he's experienced. He ran on our third place team at state last year."

Pius' state meet prospects look good, but O'Boyle remains cautiously optimistic.

"When you start adding 100 runners to the start, things get interesting," he said. "We'll just have to wait and see. It would be nice to bring the state title to Lincoln."

The championship also proved as a birthday present for O'Boyle's wife Linda.

"She said she gets the trophy," O'Boyle said. "We'll take it home today for her. But Monday, it'll be back to school."

County, State See Truce In Fairgrounds Conflict

Saturday, October 16, 1976 The Lincoln Star 17

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Star Staff Writer

A truce between the Lancaster County Fair Board and the State Board of Agriculture, which runs the State Fair, seems to have been negotiated as of Friday.

A dispute over when the county group could use the fairgrounds had erupted into a public meeting on the matter earlier this month.

Under an arrangement that dates back to 1901 the county fair exchanged 10 acres of land with the State Fair for an agreement to hold the county fair on the State Fairgrounds.

The agreement had worked well until horse racing reared its gambling head in recent years.

As the racing commission kept adding days to the State Fair races and as schools kept opening earlier, forcing an earlier date for the county fair, a conflict developed.

The advent of a large county horse show also brought conflicts over health certificates, disease problems and probably most important of all, stall space for the horses.

Under a tentative agreement between the two boards, the county fair will be held mostly in the 4-H and swine barns on the fairgrounds in 1977 with the swine barn holding the livestock.

The youth complex will hold other county exhibits.

If both fair boards and the county commissioners approve, the county would build a horse barn for the state in exchange for a guarantee that the county can then hold their fair in the youth complex in future years.

State Fair officials indicate they will take action on the plan at their November meeting after looking into the cost of such a building and a possible location for it on the fairgrounds.

If the state agrees, the county fair board will meet in December to discuss the state's proposal. If the county commissioners endorse the plan, then county fairs in Lancaster County would once again be held shortly before the State Fair in the youth complex on the State Fairgrounds.

In other action, the State Fair board accepted the low bid by Ideus Construction Company of Lincoln for rebuilding the race track for $87,000.

The fair board also purchased 3 lawn mowers for use on the grounds, approved specifications for bids for the fair carnival and reviewed the fees for camping on the fairgrounds.

A new rate structure with just two prices will be followed next year for campers with a $4 fee for those hooked up to lights and water power and a $3 fee for all others.

The board also accepted the final agreement with the University over the joint operation of the sports and entertainment complex on the fairgrounds.

A progress report on the grandstand indicates that building should still be completed in time for the 1977 racing season.

Patrol's Changes Raise Hopes

The two Lincoln attorneys who investigated the Nebraska State Patrol's drug division and publicly called for reform said they hope the recently announced changes in the division work.

Kirk Naylor, Jr., and Dennis Keefe, said Friday they hope the changes eliminate some of the problems which they said first prompted them to publicly criticize the division.

The changes were announced Thursday by Col. C. P. Karthaus and call for restructuring the drug division and adding personnel.

Karthaus attributed the change to an overall growth in the division and its activities. The new format will offer a more direct line of communication, he said.

Naylor said the "bottom line question is whether or not they actually will take advantage of this new capability and follow through."

"One of our main complaints was that the people in the field weren't adequately supervised," Naylor said. "It looks like this will provide the patrol the capability for supervision."

Life Begins At Forty: Social Security Starts Its Teleclaim Service

By JOANNE FARRIS
DEAR JOANNE FARRIS: Figure out some way for the disabled or people with no transportation to do their business by telephone? I do not think it is right that my father has had to go to so much trouble and expense just to get taken to the Social Security office to file a claim, when it could just as well be done over the telephone.

ANSWER: Someone in the Social Security bureaucracy must have heard your complaint. Within the last two months Social Security offices across the nation have begun introducing what they call Teleclaim service, designed for disabled or elderly claimants and persons whose work or lack of transportation make it difficult for them to make the trip to the Social Security office.

A Social Security representative will complete claim forms via telephone with information provided by the client. The forms will be mailed to the claimant for signature and any needed additional information. Call your local Social Security office for this Teleclaim service.

DEAR JOANNE FARRIS: My Supplemental Security Income claim has been rejected by the Social Security office. Can I appeal?

ANSWER: Yes, you can appeal within 60 days from the date you received the original determination. Let your local Social Security office know at once that you disagree with their decision, and they will give you help in getting your case reconsidered.
